

ALL CHANGE PLEASE

Whatever you're doing, the latest range of Chameleon footwear from Merrell has it all

Sometimes a man needs a shoe that doesn't just do one job, but all of them. Whether you're wandering the streets of Thailand or taking on the fells of the British Isles, Merrell's ground-breaking Chameleon range gives you the versatility to tackle any activity with confidence. As well as looking the business, thanks to their neoprene four-way stretch collar and precision lacing system, they provide the perfect possible fit, leaving you to get on with the job at hand. But there's more to them than unrivalled comfort and style – like a chameleon, these shoes adapt to their environment. The innovative multi-sport Vibram sole gives you superior grip on any surface in any conditions thanks to its multi-directional design. The super-breathable uppers ensure your feet stay bone dry so there's less chance of blisters. And you'll be thankful for the anatomical footbed, which provides shock absorption to take the pressure off your joints. Finally, an arch shank designed specifically to ensure your feet flex naturally at the ball, not the arch, and an air-cushion midsole for extra stability, mean they won't let you down. Just slip them on, grab your bag and go.

No matter what you do for your thrills, Merrell's latest range of Chameleons are up to the challenge. If mountain biking's your bag, the perfectly snug lycra collar will keep any mud and debris out, while the abrasion-resistant nubuck leather uppers can take anything you throw at them when you're flying down those single tracks at breakneck speed. For the surfing fraternity, few shoes are so beach-friendly for getting you down to the surf – the adjustable elastic cord and lock mean they can be slipped on or off in seconds while the glove-like fit will keep any sand away from your feet to give them a welcome break. And for guys who want a shoe that they can depend on for some stress-free trekking, they don't come much better – as well as being ultra lightweight, they're specifically designed to hold your heel in the back of the shoe and provide all the support you need so you finish each and every day on a high, not holding your 'plates' in agony. And when the day is over, there's no need to change your footwear as Merrell's designs look as good in the bar as on the beach. In short, if it's style and functionality you're after, look no further.
